A Closer Look at 2011's Record-Breaking $220M Lobbying Total

In 2011, 2,776 unique groups spent money lobbying in New York. The chart found from pages 2 through 97 of this report ranks each of them and compares their spending to 2010 levels.

2,143 of these groups lobbied in both 2011 and 2010. These groups' total spending decreased by $8,568,596. There were 633 groups that did not lobby in 2010 and reported doing so in 2011 spending $35,009,498. 623 groups that lobbied in 2010, spending a total of $19,270,348, did not report any spending in 2011.

Largest Decreases in Spending From 2010 through 2011

Several of these groups focused on issues for which the volume of debate ebbed significantly over these two years, such as the soda tax and wine in grocery stores. Chesapeake Appalachia, like several other clients focused on hydrofracking, saw their totals drop significantly once most of this debate began to be waged in courthouses and on draft regulations.

Complete List, 2,786 Clients Active in 2011

The following numbers reflect information as reported in lobbyist reports submitted to the Commission on Public Integrity and the Joint Commission on Public Ethics. When names were identified as different subsidiaries of one business or organization (e.g., “Forest City Ratner Companies” and “F.C. Yonkers Associates”), they were treated as one lobby client and listed under the name of their parent company. It is possible that some of these associations were missed, and that some of the organizations listed below, despite having different names, are actually the same. There were a few groups, most notably Education Reform Now, which reported different totals in their lobbying and client reports. To keep these numbers consistent, lobby reports were used for all filers.
